

Populations of Incorporated Places in the Region

The incorporated places in the Berkeley - Charleston - Dorchester region are listed in the table at the right. Their 1990 and 2000 populations are listed, along with the percent of population increases from 1990 to 2000.

Also included in the table are the response rates from the 2000 Census. These response rates refer to the number of persons that responded to their Census questionnaires via mail. The response rates for the nation and for South Carolina were 67 percent and 58 percent, respectively. Dorchester County had the highest response rate for a county in the BCD region. The City of Goose Creek had the highest response rate of the municipalities in the region.
